Deceuninck North America Recognized with 50-Year Distinguished Member Award at 2020 FGIA Annual Conference

The Fenestration & Glazing Industry Alliance (FGIA) recognized the contributions and achievements of its long-term members at the FGIA Annual Conference Awards Banquet held in February in Ft. Lauderdale, Florida. During the inaugural event, Deceuninck North America was recognized for its contributions during 50 years of continuous membership with the association.

“It is a special honor to receive the 50-year distinguished member award and to be recognized with other longstanding members of FGIA,” said Filip Geeraert, president and CEO of Deceuninck North America. “This industry-leading organization sets the performance and test standards for fenestration and glazing, and we are delighted to be a part of it for five decades. We also congratulate all the award winners for their contributions to the industry.”

Deceuninck North America joined the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA) on Jan. 11, 1969. On Jan. 1, 2020, AAMA and the Insulating Glass Manufacturers Alliance (IGMA) officially combined into one organization with the new name, Fenestration and Glazing Industry Alliance (FGIA).
